

Individuality vs. Singularity

What is detrimental to community
is not individuality,
but singularity.

Individuality is
uniqueness;
singularity is aloofness.
Individuality calls for
connection;
singularity searches for separation.
Individuality is
a part;
singularity is
apart.

Individuality is fostered
by community.
Singularity feeds off
the collectivity.

Individuality is a circle
within a circle.
Singularity is a dot
on the circumference.

Individuality invites intimacy
and relationship;
singularity is isolated
and unfettered.

Singularity is eccentric;
individuality knows
its center.

Singularity is flashy;
individuality stands
firm.
Singularity is flamboyant;
individuality avoids
flourish.
Singularity is frenetic;
individuality has
focus.

Singularity stands out;
individuality stays within.
Singularity shouts out loud;
individuality softly
whispers.

See how superficial people seek singularity.
The authentic, however,
cherish individuality.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski
August 15, 1993
Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com
www.fatherwaltersparish.org