

Marriage vs. Wedding

Marriage is for
life;
the wedding lasts
a day.

Marriage is a permanent
union;
the wedding is a passing
party.

Marriage concerns an interior commitment;
the wedding's concern is the
external celebration.

Marriage delves into
the depths;
the wedding is distracted by
the details.

Marriage concentrates on
the bond;
the wedding worries about
the band.

Marriage seeks out
church and clergy;
the wedding looks for
the hall and the caterer.

Marriage is for
the couple;
the wedding is for family
and friends.

Marriage involves
God;
the wedding invites
guests.

Marriage cherishes
the grace and the blessings;
the wedding wants
the glitz and the photos.

The glory of marriage comes from
love and fidelity;
the glamour of the wedding depends on the music and the flowers.

The marriage promises:
until death do us part;
the wedding's hope is:
to liven up the party.

Why is it that some couples spend so much time on the wedding,
but devote so little effort
at preparing for marriage?
