

The Pompous Politician

Ample in girth,
short on mirth,
plunged in dearth of
luminosity,
the shadowy luminary,
purblind visionary,
spoke with grandiose
pomposity.

With mien supercilious
and temper quite bilious, overweening in his
rapacity,
by speech mellifluous
he tried to belittle us,
but failed through
incapacity.

For, with title honorific
and manner horrific,
drowning in his
verbosity,
however haughty,
he seemed merely naughty,
guilty of feeble
atrocities.

So, his fraud was detected
and he was not elected:
we are spared this vapid
inanity;
but another shall come
to emulate the bum
and display his rabid
insanity.
